

ww

造景世界 LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE
ENVIRONMENT DESIGN

SPECIAL Studio Weave

Vol. 40

PLAID BENCH

Design Yael Mer & Shay Alkalay

Raw-Edges Design Studio (Bench10_London Design Festival 2010)

Image ©Yael Mer & Shay Alkalay Raw-Edges Design Studio

Stripes arrangement is a common element in iconic street benches, whether it is wood, metal or plastic; many of the archetype benches happen to be shaped in this way. Stripes are also the fundamental element in fabric check pattern where they arranged together in a vertical and horizontal fashion. Making a graphical connection, Raw-Edges created large set up of benches that interlocked to each other perpendicularly in order to achieve a Plaid/Check patterns.

For the installation organized by The Lollipop Shoppe at the Old Spitalfield's Market duration the London Design Festival 2010 three types of benches has been chosen: White painted plywood benches which were mostly common in public nurseries throughout our childhood years, urban stripy pine bench and solid rustic wooden bench. The benched have been painted to achieve the finished plaid pattern and were machined as well so they could be connected into each other in a cross lap joineries.

Text: Yael Mer & Shay Alkalay Raw-Edges Design Studio 